Message from the Editor-in-Chief

The Yomiuri Shimbun published its first edition in a small two-story building in 1874 in the Toranomon district of Tokyo. Our office was destroyed twice, first in the Great Kanto Earthquake and again in an air raid just before the end of World War II, but after the war we built a strong nationwide sales network and rapidly expanded. Committed to accurate and prompt reporting and a moderate, sensible editorial line, we grew to be the newspaper with the world's largest circulation. In 1994, the daily circulation of our morning edition topped 10 million copies, cementing our position as Japan's foremost newspaper.

As a news medium, by producing and publishing newspapers for many years, we have fulfilled our social mission of fostering sound public opinion, which underpins democracy. To enable us to steadily continue in this role, we have diversified and strengthened our business platform through businesses beyond newspaper publishing. We have expanded into a series of socially beneficial businesses, such as establishing the Yomiuri Giants professional baseball team, Japan's first private television network, Nippon TV, and the Yomiuri Nippon Symphony Orchestra. Another example was welcoming the old-line Chuokoron-sha publisher (now Chuokoron-Shinsha, Inc.) into the Yomiuri Shimbun Group.

In 2021, the Yomiuri Land amusement park became a wholly owned subsidiary positioned as the Group's seventh core company, and Yomiuri Shimbun Holdings became a major shareholder in Tokyo Dome Corporation, which manages the home field of the Yomiuri Giants. The Group currently has around 140 affiliates and organizations, and actively contributes to enhancement of people's daily lives and Japan's development by operating businesses in a wide range of fields including sports, culture, entertainment, health care, and public welfare.

As access to information via digital devices has advanced, people throughout the world have become accustomed to gaining information from sources such as the internet and social media. This trend has had a big impact on lifestyles, cultures, education, discussion, and public opinion worldwide, giving rise to various problems. These include the repeated spread of inaccurate information via microblogs and so-called fake news.

In this kind of digital society, the value of newspapers as a medium for comprehensively and systematically accessing information and gaining knowledge of multifaceted news covering areas such as politics, economics, international affairs, and society is once again being appreciated year by year. Based on scrupulous news-gathering by journalists posted throughout Japan and in overseas bureaus, The Yomiuri Shimbun distributes accurate, high-quality information through its nationwide sales network.

As Japan's most trusted media group, the Yomiuri Shimbun Group will continue to be committed to working together with the public.

News Reporting

As a national newspaper with 150 years of history,
The Yomiuri Shimbun has the largest circulation in the world.

We pride ourselves in providing full coverage with clear claims. We protect the rights of citizens to know the truth through numerous scoops and have been impacting our society through editorials, based on the principle of making courageous, responsible statements, and realistic, convincing advocacy reporting. In light of the rapid aging of our society, we have established specialized departments that cover fields such as medical care, social security, and education to deliver news that cater to our readers' needs.

Scoop

Discovery of hidden truths

The Yomiuri Shimbun has uncovered many hidden truths through various scoops. For example, in August 2018, we released a report regarding the problem of the medical school of Tokyo Medical University, which suppressed the number of female applications who passed their general admission test by uniformly reducing the scores of these applicants. We then continuously covered this issue thereafter. In 2019, the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology summarized rules that prohibit all faculties from discriminating against females and ronin students (those who are preparing to re-take initially failed university entrance exams) in entrance exams.

Campaign reports

Disseminating information about neglected problems

The Yomiuri Shimbun has made many reporting that made neglected social problems widely known to the public and led to national surveys, system reformations, and legislations. For example, in 2019, we launched a campaign to convey the danger of bus stops near crosswalks and intersections, which can lead to pedestrian accidents and deaths. Then the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism launched a fact-finding survey regarding dangerous bus stops, and announced the results in 2021. From 2020 to 2021, we also reported on the indecent behaviors of teachers toward children and students, which significantly impacted the society such as by promoting system revisions and passage of new countermeasure laws by the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology.

Advocacy reporting

Through the visualization of Japan's future

Ever since we proposed a constitutional amendment in November 1994, we have made proposals on various topics related to the future vision of Japan such as security, administrative reform, economic policies, education, tax system, and medical care. We have made a total of 30 proposals including that for the novel coronavirus in March 2021. We have made our first novel coronavirus-related proposal in June 2020, which recommended a PCR test capacity of 100,000 tests a day, which enhanced the testing capacity of Japan.

Editorials

Claims that can withstand scrutiny 30 years from now

Through editorials, The Yomiuri Shimbun clarifies its stance surrounding important domestic and international news related to politics, economics, social issues, etc. Under the supervision of the editor-in-chief, our Editorial Board sets the tone by debating thoroughly every day. Based on the creed of The Yomiuri Shimbun, which is to practice courageous and responsible speech, we have been making claims, without giving in to public opinion, under the basic stance of withstanding scrutiny even 30 years from now.

The fair reporting committee

Validation from third-party perspectives

When publishing important articles such as investigative or special reports, our fair reporting committee comprised of experienced reporters pre-validate the appropriateness of the article content from third-party perspectives. The committee interviews the reporters and management desks regarding the background information and details of the investigations and verifies whether the articles are well supported and the facts were legitimately evaluated based on the investigation.

Reporter training

Providing high quality press education

Our special education team trains reporters, from new reporters to veterans, based on their experience and duties. The team trains reporters techniques of interviewing and ensures thorough understanding of the public nature and interest of the press, as well as of journalism ethics.

Variety of Media

The Yomiuri Shimbun responds to the needs of our readers and satisfies their intellectual curiosity and inquisitiveness through a variety of media lineup.

THE JAPAN NEWS
BY THE YOMIURI SHIMBUN

From Japanese politics to anime

Launched in 1955, The Japan News is a daily English-language newspaper published by The Yomiuri Shimbun. Readers can gain insight into Japan's political, economic and social trends, both broadly and in-depth, from English translations of Yomiuri Shimbun articles.

In addition to articles from The Yomiuri Shimbun and overseas news agencies, there are feature articles from partner foreign papers such as The Washington Post. It all adds up to make The Japan News a rich source of information.

The paper also carries feature articles on cultural aspects of Japan, both traditional and pop culture including anime and manga, as well as articles on food, tourism and more.

Network

Nationwide printing plants and transportation/sales network

The Yomiuri Shimbun prints its newspapers at 30 printing plants nationwide where newspapers are printed via a high-speed rotary press. Printed newspapers are rapidly delivered to the Yomiuri Shimbun sales outlets (Yomiuri Centers [YC]) through our proprietary transportation network.

Including the YCs that handle other newspapers, we have roughly 7,000 YCs nationwide that employ about 60,000 staff members.

SDGs

Environmental considerations and decarbonization

Since June 2020, The Yomiuri Shimbun has been participating in the SDG Media Compact, a U.N. initiative for calling the world's leading media organizations to work together to achieve the sustainable development goals (SDGs). We have also been trying to solve various issues related to newspaper sales such as by devising newspaper production, publication, and transportation methods that consider the environment and decarbonization.

Solar panels at the printing plants

In the field of newspaper production and publication, The Yomiuri Shimbun started using in August 2021 a solar power generation system via a power supply service called the PPA (power purchase agreement) model at our Gunma Plant (Fujioka, Gunma Prefecture). About 500 kilowatt of green energy produced by the power-generating equipment installed on the plant's roof is used to print newspapers, etc.

The Yomiuri No Mori (Yomiuri forest) and old newspaper collection

Since 2013, the Yomiuri Recycle Network (YRN), a newspaper recycling organization run by The Yomiuri Shimbun, Yomiuri Centers (YC), and newspaper recyclers, has been implementing the Yomiuri No Mori (Yomiuri forest) project to regenerate and nurture forests. In parallel, this project is also being launched by the Tokyo Rengo Yomiurikai in Higashi-Chichibu, Saitama Prefecture; Sammu City, Chiba Prefecture; and Odawara City, Kanagawa Prefecture.

In April 2020, we also launched a closed loop system (Yomiuri eco-sharing) that recycles 100% of the resources domestically by directly selling newspapers collected from the residences of our readers to domestic paper-making companies.

Environmentally-friendlier deliveries

In June 2019, Yomiuri Shimbun Holdings launched a co-transportation partnership with McDonald's Japan by loading ingredients of McDonald's into trucks that deliver the newspapers. This is to optimize the transportation of both companies and reduce environmental load by decreasing the number of active trucks.

In September 2020, our Osaka headquarters established a council with Kansai Electric Power Company, Iwatani Corporation, McDonald's Japan and Kyoto City to use electric bikes for conducting business such as newspaper deliveries and share batteries with each other. This is to eliminate gas exhaustion and promote the usage of electric bikes which are environmentally friendly.
